The Place Is Here — and the Time Is Now

It is the fourth day of the Red Cross Roll Call, as I write this, and there's no denying that this greatest annual call for charity is meeting with a slow answer in Hope. The Hempstead county chapter has been assigned a quota of $1,200, but the canvass up to Thursday noon had produced only about $350.

County Red Cross Passes $300 Mark

Donations of $183.35 Reported Thursday by City Workers

Donations of $183.35 was reported Thursday boosting the annual Red Cross membership drive to a grand total $353.35 for DeRoon Township. The drive, which will continue until November 30, has score of chairmen and workers canvassing the business and residential section of Hope as well as in every town and community throughout the county.

Homecoming for Bobcats Here Friday

Students to Hold Rally Preceding Hope-Malvern Fray Friday

The Hope High School Bobcats will entangle the Malvern Leopards in what is expected to be one of the toughest games of the season Friday night at Hammons Stadium. It is the Bobcats' Homecoming and they are seeking their second win of the season. The local team defeated Prescott 20-12 last week.

Coronation of the homecoming queen will take place in the high school auditorium prior to a big pep rally at three o'clock Friday. The public is invited. Queen Nancy Sue Robins will be crowned by Captain Curtis Breeding.

Parade Through City

After the coronation there will be a parade from the high school campus through the downtown business district. It will be led by the seventy-five piece high school band and the Queen with her maids. All junior and senior high school classes and clubs have entered floats with some business firms registered. A dollar prize will be awarded the most attractive float by the student council, which is sponsoring homecoming activities. The judges will be three local business men.

The Hope High School Student Body extends an invitation to all fans to attend the homecoming activities throughout the day. The homecoming game, Hope Bobcats vs. the Malvern Leopards, will begin at eight o'clock in Hammons Stadium. At 7:45 p. m. the Hope High School band will perform and the royal court will meet the captains of the Hope and Malvern football teams on the field for a brief ceremony. The band will also perform during the half.

Bobcats Ready

Coaches Hammons and Brasher said Thursday that all the Bobcats are in good shape and ready for Malvern. Much time has been devoted this week to perfecting a running attack which has been a weakness all season.

Malvern has one of the state's best teams, having walloped Little Rock early in the season and losing only to Camden in one of the season's biggest upsets. The team has two hard running and shifty backs in Rowe and Fuller.

Officials are: Referee, Howard, Onschila, Cole, U. of A. and Garland, Ark. A. & M.

John T. Flynn Tells What 20-Billion-Dollar Debt Boost Will Mean to the United States

But Even Wall Street Can't Figure the Trend

By JOHN T. FLYNN
NEA Service Financial Writer
NEW YORK — Wall Street stock prices . . . national defense . . . the election . . . twenty billion more debt limit: all these explosives are being mixed to produce a show of life on the exchanges.

Wall Street can't make up its mind very definitely. A few days before election some speculators got the notion that Wallkie might win. Up went stocks. The day after election they went down with a thump.

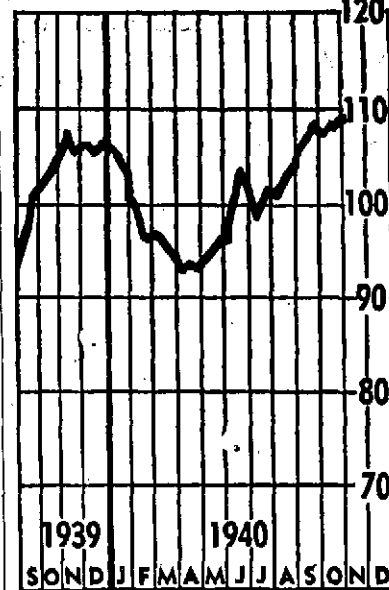

Then Secretary Morgenthau declared that the government would ask for another 20-billion-dollar boost in the debt limit. That looked as if the lid were going to be hoisted and the country thrown to the bulls. And up went stocks again—as much as 8 points for some. They rose again on Saturday.

Why the sudden change of sentiment? There was, indeed, something ominous in that talk about 20 billion.

The defense program is slowly lifting business activity. From July 1 to Oct. 1, seven billions in defense contracts have been approved—though only a part of them have been awarded. But billions will be spent in addition—for soldiers, cantonments, on contracts already awarded.

All this cannot help setting business in motion. All this means profits. But—there'll have to be taxes too . . . heavy taxes . . . maybe devastating taxes. For with several billions deficit this year already, we superimpose a 15-billion armament program on the budget.

And so while the defense contracts make the speculators clap their little hands, the fear of taxes frightens their little hearts. The contracts are good . . . the deficits are good . . . but they are afraid of Mr. Roosevelt. Hence the market went down day after election.

Inflation—A Misused Word
But the market was not prepared for what has happened. Here it is: In 1917 congress passed a bill limiting the government to $45,000,000,000 debt. That is almost all used up. So this year congress extended that by four billion. But with strings. There is about a billion or nearly a billion margin inside the old debt limit, not yet reached, and with the new four-billion grant the government can borrow five billion inside its present limit. A grant of another five billion will about cover the government's needs for a year. But the treasury asked 20 billion.

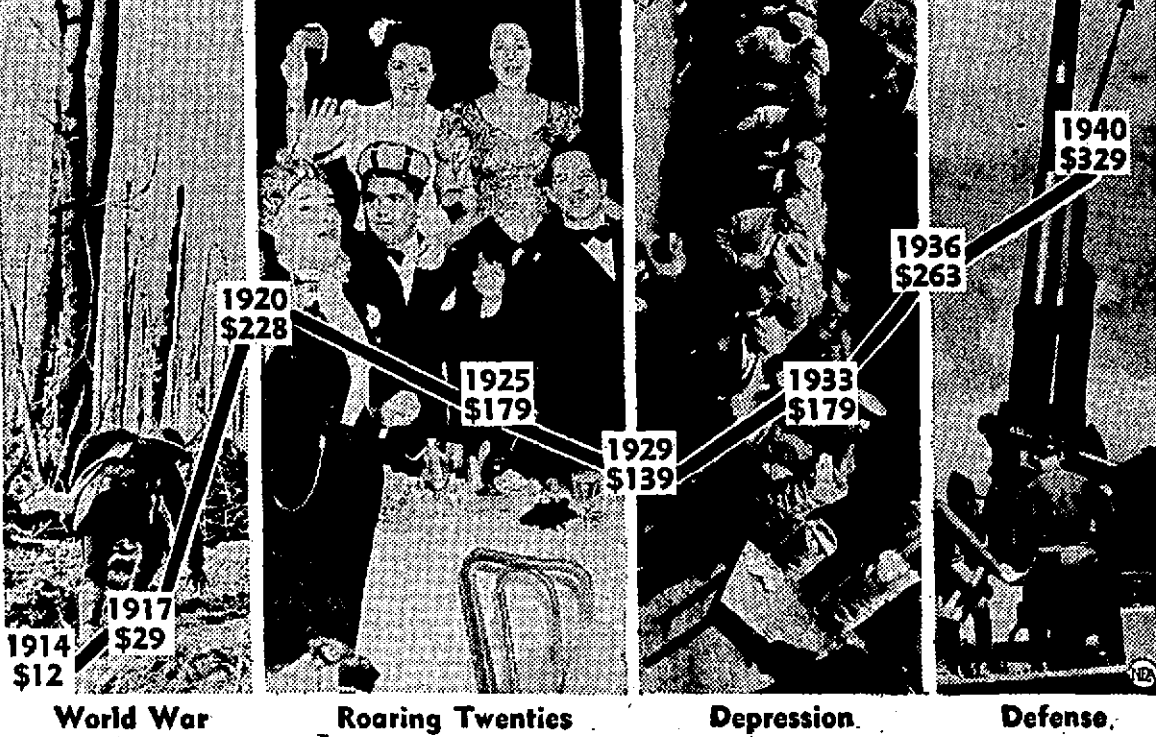

Wall Street—or at least some traders—immediately decided that the government was getting ready for further war moves on an immense scale. They could see billions flowing out into business and being turned into purchasing power in the hands of the people. There was therefore a rush of buyers of stocks. What these men see is a probable inflation.

You can get men in Wall Street to tell you there will be no inflation. But the trouble is that everybody uses the word in a different sense. You cannot pump six or seven billion of government money into the blood stream of business—billions obtained by borrowing—without producing inflation. Make it 20 billion and you get more inflation.

This does not mean inflation in which the dollar will sink down to a dime or a penny or go to grotesque lengths as in Germany after the last war. Inflation merely means the creation of artificial purchasing power in addition to that created by the normal processes of business. When governments borrow money and spend it they tend to inflate.

U. S. PER CAPITA DEBT

Pictograph shows how each American's share in the national debt has increased since 1914. Last figure is based on future debt of $65,000,000,000, which does not include five billions in guaranteed obligations of government corporations and another five billions unused.

Court Adjourns Until Monday

Five Appeal Cases Are Heard Here Thursday

In Hempstead Circuit Court here Thursday morning five appeal cases were disposed of and Judge Dexter Bush, of Texarkana, then adjourned the court until Monday at which time a long criminal docket will be heard.

The court affirmed a lower court's decision in the case of Aubrey Bright who was fined $10 and costs for beating a board bill.

A charge of driving a car without a drivers license against J. W. Beard-on was dismissed.

H. W. McConnell, charged with possessing a still, was fined $50 and cost, upholding a judgement of a lower court.

A jury acquitted John Barnes, charged with drunkenness.

A. Mitchell was fined $50 and costs for possessing untaxed liquor, upholding a lower courts decision.

Rookie Infantrymen Will Be Taught About Rifles

One of a series taking a draftee into Uncle Sam's new army.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Assuming that John Q. Citizen, drafted for the army, has been put into a set of draftees learning to be infantrymen, it is quite natural that one of the first things taught him is how to handle the rifle itself, how to load it and how to fire it.

It is impressed upon him that he is handling a valuable piece of government property for which he is responsible. His rifle has a number and he must remember this number. He turns in the weapon to his platoon officer at night.

He is taught the name of every part of the rifle. He learns how to take it apart and put it together again. That is necessary in case the weapon jams some time. He must know how to fix it. He must also be careful to clean it from dust and dirt and sand. He must learn how to sight and to aim the weapon.

Then one fine day he is taken out to the rifle range and allowed to blaze away with real ammunition. He will get plenty of this expensive exercise because a soldier is no good if he does not know how to shoot and shoot to good effect.

Next he will have bayonet drill and training. He must learn how to defend himself against the bayonet thrusts of a possible enemy soldier and how to take the counter-offensive with that weapon, so terrible in smashing

Molotoff and Hitler Comes to Agreement

Russian Dominion Set Up in East, Peace Urged With Japan

BERLIN —(P)—Adolf Hitler and Soviet Premier Molotoff have agreed upon the Russian sphere of interest lying generally between Japan's far-eastern sphere and Europe and Africa, which Rome and Berlin have allotted to themselves, sources usually in known divulged Thursday after Molotoff started for home.

With the exception of European Russia and Turkey, all of Europe and Africa will stand under the leadership of the Axis creators, Germany and Italy, these persons said.

Official confirmation of this was unobtainable, since Wilhelmstrasse made it plain that nothing would be said beyond this noon's communique which stated that Germany and Russia had reached a "mutual accord on all important questions of interest" to both.

Reliable sources gave this picture of the new Soviet-Reich accord:

Russia to have her own "grossraum," or vast region of domination, lying generally between Japan's far east sphere and the Axis-claimed Europe and Africa.

Russia's "grossraum" would not be created at the expense of nations not involved in the European war; no further slice will be taken from Finland nor will the Dardanelles be seized from Turkey, provided Turkey "behaves."

Turkey must make up her mind definitely and finally regarding her place in the new order. If she chooses the "grossraum" for supporting the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo program must come from the "bankruptcy inventory" of the British Empire.

If Russia wants to realize an ancient dream of gaining access to the world's oceans, possibly via Iran or Afghanistan and British India, the Axis powers will raise no objections.

All the parties concerned will join in efforts to bring about a non-aggression pact between Russia and Japan.

Taranto Again Raided
LONDON —(P)— From hard-hit Taranto, at the tip of Italy, to Berlin the Royal Air Force's bombers struck Wednesday night, pressing home the offensive which the British say crippled half of Mussolini's battleship and has given the Empire's combined sea-air power prestige throughout the world.

The ministry of information said that RAF bombers successfully bombed the harbors and docks of Taranto Wednesday night in a followup to Monday night's smashing raid.

In Berlin British bombs burst in answer to Hitler's newest stroke of diplomacy as they gave Russia's Premier Molotoff his first taste of what an air raid is like.

British Calms Denied

Boston May Get Bowl Bid

Game With Georgetown Means Much

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor
WASHINGTON — Georgetown tackles the Boston College behemoths at Fenway Park, Boston, Nov. 16, but John L. Hagerty isn't lying awake nights counting flying Eagles scampering across the Hoyas' goal line.
Jack Hagerty has a number of sizable kids himself. . . is three deep with a line averaging 202 pounds and a backfield coming in at 138.
The battle between Georgetown and Boston College has developed into one of the high spots of the campaign. Both are untied and undefeated. The Washington institution hasn't been repulsed since its final game of 1937. Syracuse—last fall, score 13-13—is the only club that has held the Blue and Gray even in three years . . . in 23 engagements.

Even though accomplished Auburn and Holy Cross remain on the Boston College schedule, following its engagement with Georgetown, everybody in New England will be astonished if the giants of Chestnut Hill fail to finish with a clear record.

Those who have met and seen Georgetown have a hunch that there will be a grand reshuffling of the nation's first 10 when the last shot is fired in the home of the Red Sox.

Syracuse Players Would Pick Hoyas Over Cornell
Neither club has played a schedule worthy of its mettle, although Boston College's smashing victory over Tulane gives it an edge in performances to date. Both smashed teams, Boston College also ran roughshod over Centre, Idaho, St. Anselm, Manhattan and Boston University.

Georgetown this season has been extended only by Waynesburg, a fine little outfit which put up a brave fight before losing, 28-12. The Hoyas disposed of Roanoke, Virginia Tech, New York University, Syracuse and Maryland . . . as they pleased.

Syracuse players, who opposed both, freely venture the opinion that Georgetown would repel Cornell.
Chiefly credited with the continuance of the Georgetown surge is Joe McPadden, a quarterback with the water for blood, and Julius Koshlap, left halfback. When Julius isn't splitting the defense wide open with passes, he is running the ball for magnificent distances.

On a team studded with All-American prospects, Augie Lio, a 210-pound place-kicking guard, is the choice of teammates to be the first Georgetown player to be accorded that honor since Babe Connaughton, 30-pound guard, made the grade in 1926.

Seventeen Strapping Sophs
Spur Veterans
Giving a rough idea of the strength of the Georgetown forwards, Al Blozis has a tough time crashing the picture at tackle.

He stands six feet weighs 240, and holds the world indoor shotput and the I. C. 4-A shot and discus marks.

A squad of 45, the largest since Hagerty, an alumnus who starred in the backfield for the New York professional Giants, took charge at the Hilltop in 1932, reported this autumn. Jack Hagerty has seniors backing up a senior team, but 17 strapping sophomores make life miserable for upperclassmen.

So-win lose or draw in the Boston College scrap—life isn't going to be tea and crumpets for Georgetown's opponents for the next couple of seasons.

SERIAL STORY

BY W. H. PEARS

YESTERDAY, Bill's efforts to arouse the voice of the people were successful. Buck gets a chance to show his movies to the crowd members. He explains that the team has ability, lacks confidence and spirit. Three board members are impressed. Peskin counters: "How can you inspire boys when you son is constantly in trouble?"

CHAPTER X

BACK at Peskin's drug store, Helen and Drowsy waited eagerly for news. Drowsy fidgeted behind the counter; Helen played with the cracked ice in her coke. As Bill came slowly through the door, they rushed at him.

"What's the news, kid?" Drowsy demanded.

"Oh, Bill, is it good?" Helen asked.

"I don't know," Bill said gloomily. "But I'm afraid not. He told them about the meeting. 'Mr. Skelton wasn't so bad, but old Peskin's still sore as a boiled oyster. Gosh, I wish I'd let Bullethead knock the tar out of me!'"

Helen looked at the clock. It was nearly 10. "I'm awfully nervous, Bill."

"Just the same, I'm glad you're here," Bill said. "I'll mix up some cokes." Drowsy moved to let him behind the fountain.

They sat in silence, sipping their drinks. Each time the door opened they jumped. In a daze, Bill waited on customers. He made the wrong change twice and put cherry syrup in a chocolate soda.

A loud, familiar voice broke in on Bill's thoughts. Bullethead Peskin swaggered into the store with Dot Skelton. She froze Bill and his friends with a haughty glance.

Bullethead hammered on the table and made himself generally obnoxious. But tonight Bill could not be baited. He waited on them quietly, making no retort to their jibes.

Helen's eyes blazed. "They ought to be ashamed to treat Bill like that!"

Drowsy said, "Look, Helen, here comes Peskin now! J. Conrad is with him."

The two men strode importantly into the store, joining Dot and Bullethead at their table. Julius Peskin's four face was as close to a smile as it ever came. He jerked his finger at Bill.

"Two chocolate sodas," he ordered, turning a magnanimous smile on Skelton. "This is my treat."

"Thank you," J. Conrad Skelton said pompously. "All that talking has made my throat dry."

"Why don't they say something?" Drowsy whispered. "Why do they want to make Bill suffer?"

The four talked in low tones.

There Should Be a More Equitable Way of Determining Difference Between Grid Teams Than Risky Kicked Point After Touchdown

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor
Minnesota defeating Michigan, 7-6, once more stresses the unfairness of the point after touchdown.

There should be a more equitable way of determining the difference between football teams.

Certainly it is unfair when a team that has rushed the ball 80 yards to a touchdown, but has missed the extra point, returns to the campus beaten by one that was fortunate enough to have a speedster intercept a pass and dash 80 yards to a touchdown, and pick up the extra point.

It isn't always lack of preparation that causes a team to lose by a single point.

After Don Clawson barely muffed the first one, Lynn Waldorf substituted George Benson at fullback for the express purpose of kicking goal following Northwestern's second touchdown against Minnesota, but the ball sailed just outside of the projected line of the left upright to establish the final score at 13-12.

It was a spring-like day. Conditions were perfect.

And two evenings before . . . in semi-darkness, rain and mud, Benson booted eight goals in succession in practice.

The only advantage of the kick for point is that it minimizes the number of games, but I join those who would prefer more deadlocks to watching clubs lose by a point after touchdown in the face of lopsided statistics in their favor.

No one in the Harvard party was thinking and neither was Red Friesell, the referee, when the Crimson kicked its tying field goal against Pennsylvania late in the third period.

The goal was kicked while Penn was offside and the penalty, if awarded, would have given the Cantabs a first down on the Quakers' two.

Bill Brown, Harvard's acting captain, says he was not informed of the infraction, and had no chance to refuse or accept it.

By throwing the three points away and gambling for six and victory, Harvard easily might have brought an otherwise rather dull game to an exciting climax.

drank lustrely. Several times Bullethead smirked in Bill's direction.

It was the toughest 16 minutes Bill ever had spent. He was pretty sure they had decided against Buck, but until they spoke there was still a chance. He moved about the fountain his mouth cotton-dry, his hands shaking a little.

Presently Skelton cleared his throat. "Mentor, will you step over here, please?"

The distance seemed like a mile. Bill was conscious of the tense faces of Helen and Drowsy, of the ill-concealed triumph in Bullethead's grin. He knew what was coming; he stood erect, bracing himself for it.

"My boy," Skelton said, "you and your father gave a good show. We on the board appreciate the effort expended."

Skelton continued: "Several members were favorably impressed. I myself feel that your father is capable. However, in view of certain past actions of your own, opposition to the appointment was encountered."

Drowsy Peters emitted a snort. Bill's jaw went hard as he asked, "Does that mean, Mr. Skelton, that Buck won't be hired?"

"I'm afraid, Mentor, it—"

His words dropped into a meaningless quaver of sound. Bill saw the fear in Skelton's eyes and followed his gaze. A man stood in the doorway. Big and bulky, his face was hidden by a burlap sack with holes cut in it. He held a pistol.

"Reach high," he commanded harshly. "This is a stick-up."

Bill's first thought was of Helen, but the sack bandit's attention was fixed on the adults. Speechless, the two pillars of the board raised their hands. Dot's face was creamy with fright.

"You!" The man jerked his gun at Bill. "Empty the till."

"M-my money," Julius Peskin wailed.

"Shut up! Hurry, kid."

Bill moved toward the cash register. There was nearly a hundred dollars in the drawer. He tried to think of something to do, but his mind was blank. He fumbled with the money.

"Quit stalling, kid," the bandit growled, "or someone's liable to get hurt."

3-PURPOSE MEDICINE
Are swollen membranes and clogging mucus caused by a stuffy head cold making life miserable for you? Then relieve discomfort with a few drops of Vicks Vapo-Nol up each nostril.

Va-tro-nol is so effective because it does three important things—(1) shrinks swollen membranes—(2) soothes irritation—(3) helps flush nasal passages, clearing clogging mucus. When used in time, Va-tro-nol helps prevent many colds from developing.

sided at the short business session. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Syd McMath.

"Planting Fundamentals" was the subject of the program presented by the chairman for the day, Mrs. Finley Ward. She closed her introductory remarks with a flower identification contest, which was won by Mrs. R. L. Bronch. She received a beautiful potted plant. A paper prepared by Mrs. York on "Chrysanthemums Culture" was read by one of the members.

During the social hour, the hostesses served hot coffee with sandwiches.

Mrs. Dorsey McRae Has First Of A Series of Teas

The Dorsey McRae home on East Third street was artistically decorated with myriads of autumnal flowers on Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. McRae had the first of a series of vanishing teas given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church.

During the afternoon the hostess served a delightful salad plate with coffee to twenty guests, who had a pleasant afternoon conversing and sewing.

Mrs. William McGill Is Hostess To Members of Wednesday Club

Two tables were arranged for the members of the Wednesday Contract Bridge club at the home of Mrs. Roy Allison, when Mrs. William McGill entertained the group on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Roy Stephenson was the high scorer for the members and was presented with a dainty gift. Mrs. W. R. Herndon was the only guest and she, too, received a gift.

At the conclusion of the games, the hostess served chili-mac with coffee.

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

Lana Turner . . . all the men were carefully led outside while she got into her soapbubble bath.

Even the Director Is Banished From the Set While Lana Turner Is Sheathed in Suds Bath

HOLLYWOOD — All over the lot, your correspondent was chased off a sound stage today, and I had plenty of company. Director Robert Leonard, his assistants, the camera crew, electricians, prop men and grips all had to evacuate the set. The inside watchman protested he wasn't supposed to leave his post under any circumstances, but they took him along.

When every male creature was safely and definitely outside, Miss Lana Turner took off a negligee and stepped into a bathtub. Ordinarily the move could have been accomplished modestly with a screen or two and some protective flutterings by maids holding sheets. But there was too much sound and lighting equipment around this bathtub to get screen anywhere near it. So we left while a maid and a makeup woman and a lady hairdresser got Miss Turner nicely fixed under a layer of soapbubbles.

The picture is "Ziegfeld Girl" and Miss Turner is one of three Follies performers whose stories are told in film. Hedy Lamarr is a showgirl; Judy Garland a young singer whom Ziegfeld brings to prominence; and Lana is the Starway Girl who poses at the top of the brilliant production numbers.

The bathtub sequences took place in the Starway Girl's apartment, and judging by its Demilleish elegance and the dialog, she must have been doing very well for herself. Miss Garland was there, pleading very earnestly about something and concluding that "to make good in this business you have got to keep your head."

And the other girl said airily: "My head is the one thing that I have kept, and it's got me just where I want to be."

Friends at Parting

Hedy Lamarr is the busiest actress in town right now, and the chores she's performing leave no doubt about Metro's estimation of her. Not yet able to begin her role in "Ziegfeld Girl,"

Miss Betty Jones, conducted many interesting games.

A delicious plate was served.

Mrs. James L. Lewis Compliments Miss Singleton

As special compliment to Miss Martha Ann Singleton, a popular bride-elect, Mrs. James L. Lewis entertained at a dinner-bridge on Wednesday evening. After the dinner bridge was played from one table with Miss Ruth Lewis receiving the high score gift. The honoree was presented with a lovely gift.

Personal Mention

Mrs. Gladine Morris has returned from Little Rock, where she attended a meeting of the Selective Service Board for the State Board members and chief clerks.

Miss Irene Chamber of Little Rock, state worker of the W. M. U. of the First Baptist churches who conducted the study on "To Publish Glad Tidings" at the Hope church on Wednesday, was the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gibson Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Park left Thursday morning for their home in Vicksburg, Mississippi after a visit with friends and relatives in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cook Sr. had as recent guests, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Cook of Malvern and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wilson and son of De Queen.

Eugene Schweitzer of Houston, Texas, formerly of Hope, is visiting his father, who is a patient in the Julia Chester hospital.

Mrs. Gordon Cook had as recent guests, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cook and little daughter, Gail Gordon, of El Dorado, and Mr. and Mrs. Gail Gordon, of El Dorado, and Mr. and Mrs. Gail Cook of Durant, Oklahoma.

Lawson Glover of Malvern is a business visitor in the city Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Washburn of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., arrived in Hope Thursday to visit their son, A. H. Washburn, publisher of The Star. They are at the Hotel Barlow. They left Wilkes-Barre by way of Baltimore and Nashville, visiting other members of the family on the way.

adopted and in not one of these is there a single stipulation against women's voting and holding office.

In the Ute tribal council in Colorado, two women, Aleen Hatch and Emma South Beecher, sit with five men. Clara Wicks, a Shasta Indian, is president of the council of the Indians in Kautz Valley, Calif. Bessie Tillohesh, a Ute, is a member of the Shivwits council in Utah. Mrs. Virginia H. Walker, a full-blood Omaha, is treasurer of the Omaha council in Scott. In the Wind River reservation in Wyoming, Mrs. Melite F. Council, The Fort Hall (Idaho) reservation business council now has its first woman member in Sarah P. Snipe, a full-blood Bannock.

I could go on—the list is long. Mr. Collier says this change in Indian affairs really has taken place in the last six years. The Indian reorganization act in 1934 gave Indian groups the right to draft their constitutions for local self-government, to elect their own officers, and to borrow from the federal revolving credit fund to establish their tribes in economic enterprise.

In Civil Service Jobs

The Indian maids had learned a thing or two from their white sisters and lost no time in getting the vote and using it. Since the women already had established themselves in the arts and crafts, the sewing, canning, poultry raising and other things by which the Indian family income is supplemented, their place at the new council tables immediately became important.

In one other respect, the government has given the Indian woman a "break" in her search for a new freedom. The reorganization act also set forth that Indians should be given civil service preference in the office of Indian affairs. Hundreds of Indian girls have been given jobs since then. There are 100 Indian women now teaching in the Indian service schools and almost that many are graduate nurses in Indian service hospitals. One more generation, and no one ever will believe that time was when the squaw's place—only place—was in the teepee.

Mince Pies on Thanksgiving

Practice Now Can Make Perfect Holiday Meal

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

AP Feature Service Writer

Mince pies and plum puddings! Reappearance of this pair definitely heralds the holidays.

You'd better get some practice in making up these winter stand-bys so you can turn them out at top speed when Thanksgiving arrives.

Here are recipes that click. They can be used all winter. Some are brand new; others are faintly doctored to meet changing times, varying pocketbooks and whimsical moods.

Mince meat and cranberries, mixed together make a pie with a tantalizing flavor. Mix 2 cups of prepared mince meat with 1/4 cup raisins and pour into an unbaked pie crust. Cover with a cup of cranberries, mixed thoroughly with 2-3 cup granulated sugar, a tablespoon flour, 1/4 teaspoon grated orange rind and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Pour 1/4 cup filling and cover with a top crust. Bake 15 minutes in a moderately hot oven, then lower the heat and bake 35 more minutes.

Mince meat is improved when moistened with leftover fruit juices, orange juice, cider or spiced fruit liquid. Or brandy for those who want it. About a fourth cup of liquid per pie is ample.

Always serve mince pie hot. To reheat it, carefully cover with a pie pan and leave it for 10 minutes in a moderate oven. You can sprinkle grated cheese over the top crust before it is heated. The cheese will melt and form a crusty, brown top with a delicious flavor. Mince pies made up a day or so ahead should be stored in a cool place.

For those waist-watchers who love rich foods but cannot often indulge, this fruit pie is grand and not so heavy as mince pie. Mix a cup of sugar with 1/4 cup flour, one-third teaspoon salt and one-third cup each of apricot, orange, prune and lemon juices. Cook slowly until thick. Stir constantly. Add three-fourths cup each chopped cooked prunes, apricots and figs. Add one-third cup into a crust-lined pie pan. Cover broken nuts, 1/2 cup raisins and pour with strips of pastry, criss-cross fashion. Bake 15 minutes at about, 450 degrees. Lower the heat and bake 25 more minutes.

Dave had taken his girl to lunch and she had spoken to a nice-looking man at the next table.

"Is that man a friend of yours?" asked Dave.

"Yes," she replied.

"Well, why don't we ask him to join us?"

"Oh, Dave, this is so sudden," cooed the girl.

"What's so sudden?"

"Why—why—he's our minister."

less rich than most plum puddings but equally as good. Soak 2 cups of bread crumbs half an hour in a cup of hot milk. Add a cup of chopped suet, cup of dark brown sugar, 3 eggs, beaten, 1/4 cup fruit juices (any kind), teaspoon each of vanilla, cinnamon, cloves and grated orange rind, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup flour, teaspoon soda and a cup each of chopped prunes and figs, cup each chopped citron, nuts and candied fruit peels (assorted). Half fill greased pudding mold and steam 3 hours. Serve hot with hard sauce or sherry or fruit liquid sauce.

Carrot Pudding Emerson in a new version of an old standby. It fits the leaner pocketbooks and helps keep down the calorie counts. Mix three-fourths cup each of flour, grated raw carrots, grated raw potatoes, raisins, thirds cup light brown sugar, a teaspoon currants and dates. Add two-thirds each of salt, baking powder, cinnamon and soda, 1/2 teaspoon each of vanilla, mace and cloves and 1/4 cup milk. Half-fill a buttered mold, cover tightly and steam 2 1/2 hours. Serve hot with orange creamy sauce.

Visionary? Yes! Visionary and Vital

The name of Solomon, King of Israel has become a synonym for wisdom. His proverbial wisdom is one which is especially worth recalling just at this time, when we are all thinking about the future of free government. Solomon said:

Where there is no vision, the people perish.

Just as the whole rest of life is in having something to look forward to, so in the life of a people, the only thing that gives a social order any meaning (and therefore any strength) is the feeling that "we are getting somewhere—we have a splendid goal to achieve."

There has been too much talk of "preserving democracy." Certainly it must be preserved, but always with the thought before us of what it may become, not become what it used to be. The glory of the free way of life is not in what it has done, but in what it may do.

Professor Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago is perhaps the dean of American political scientists. He is as deep a student of government as lives, yet he is no ivory-tower dreamer. Professor Merriam has broken many a lance in the field of practical politics, and many a written constitution, charter, and state paper bears the mark of his hand and brain.

He has seen a vision of the future of free society, such a vision as we must all see if we are to understand that free government is worth fighting for. He sees future free governments and societies in which the role of power will not be repressive merely, but dynamic and constructive. "In these coming days," he says, "men may achieve not merely that personal security and community stability which alone might mean money and boredom. Men may look forward to adventurous participation in the process of creative evolution—in the constructive transformation and betterment of life conditions."

The 17th and 18th centuries, Professor Merriam says, won civil liberties by protecting person and property against arbitrary seizure and force. The 19th established political liberty through the right to vote and hold office. These are largely negative. The positive stage now appears. It is open to this and following generations actually to mold conditions of social life in a positive direction—to remove special privilege and obstacles to the full development of personality, with accompanying expansion of liberty—education, economic security, and cultural opportunities.

Psychology, psychoanalysis, psychology, medicine are all tools now available for this constructive building, as well as the familiar tools of political and economic devices.

The Golden Age lay in the dim past, men once believed. Today's free man sees with Dr. Merriam a Golden Age in the free future.

China shipped about $500,000 worth of fire-crackers to the United States in 1938.

Bruce Catton Says:

By BRUCE CATTON, NEA Washington Correspondent

Rockefeller Says Latin Americans Doubt Sincerity

WASHINGTON — One of the big things keeping Nelson Rockefeller busy these days is the fact that Latin Americans can't quite forget the U. S. Marines and dollar diplomacy.

Saddled with the lengthy title of coordinator for the National Defense Commission of Cultural and Commercial Relations with Latin America, young Rockefeller has become chief salesman, field marshal and kink-mover for the whole good neighbor policy.

The Latins like the policy fine, he says, but they keep wondering: "Is this real, and if so, how long does it last? Are those people trying to help us or to exploit us? If they're helping us, is it for keeps or just while the war lasts?"

"I realize we're under suspicion," he says. "Right now this office is studying all the plans people have suggested for helping the Latin Americans and making them like us better. We've got to improve our cultural relations in two directions—our own people must do their part to know and like the Latin Americans better, too."

There are two angles to this policy, as he sees it. Improvement of our cultural relations has got to be built on improvement of trade relations. If the Latins can be convinced that what we're doing in the field of trade and commerce is going to make them permanently better off, and isn't just another form of exploitation, then they will be interested in reading our books, exchanging students with us, learning our language and listening to our radio programs.

In the commercial field, Rockefeller has to net as a sort of liaison man. Commerce Department is trying to help U. S. exporters increase their sales in South America. Agriculture is helping the South Americans develop new commodities—such as rubber—for sale to the United States. Port Bank experts are puzzling about dollar exchange, about getting capital for new industries and public improvements in the southern continent and about disposal of commodity surpluses.

It's up to Rockefeller to see that

Bickel, John Hay Whitney and Don Francisco—to handle newspaper, motion picture and radio propaganda.

Another group is being formed to deal with music, art and books.

Straight From the Shoulder

Rockefeller frankly admits he does not know precisely what will be done in these various fields. First job, he says, is to figure out just what sort of stuff the South Americans themselves want. He may send out some sort of poll, or questionnaires, to find out.

"We're way behind some other countries in this field, and we can't catch up in a month, or even in a year," he says. "I rather think though, that the franker we are in our propaganda—the more directly we learn how to say 'We want you to like us, and this is the way we do things, and we hope you like our methods,' the more successful we shall be."

"The first thing we've got to do is learn their language," he adds. "I want to popularize Spanish and Portuguese in American schools, as well as popularize English in South American schools. We've got to get acquainted with them at the same time that we make them acquainted with us."

Army Is Ready This Time

3 Million More Men Now Than in 1917-18

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON — The big difference between the draft army of 1940 and the draft army of 1917-18 is about 3,000,000 men.

At what a price! The army had to take on more than it could handle. For a while they pushed a million men a month through the training camps.

Naturally there were 90-day wonder shavelheads who'd march companies right off cliffs if the sergeant did not stop them. Sanitation was not all that could be desired. Camp streets often were seas of mud. And the army was handling weapons many of its officers didn't understand.

There's that classic about the infantry officer who so deplored the death into the forest airplane landing that he posted this bulletin on a Texas air field:

"Effective this date, there will be no more forced landings." Shoes and uniforms seldom fit well in 1917. Haste was the reason for all this. We were aiming too fast, training men too fast.

This time, the medical corps says it is ready to cope with all preventable epidemics. The doctors remember the tragedy of the 1918 flu epidemic. Uniforms have been modified for easy fitting. Every camp will have a shot fitting machine. Air officers will give orders in air troops.

The army's punch card system is probably the outstanding difference. Under it men will give their trades, hobbies, preferences, likes. And they will be given jobs that fit them when possible. (More about this in another article.)

The army hopes Private Misfit will not haunt his officers as he did in 1918.

One day a World War commanding officer got a requisition for all expert automobile mechanics in his camp. He sent for Private Misfit.

"What did you do before you got in the army?"

"Engineer, sir."

"You must be mistaken," said the exasperated commander. "Think! Weren't you an automobile mechanic?"

"Well, sir, I don't."

"Just what I thought. Pack up your duds and report to headquarters as an expert automobile mechanic!"

That won't happen again, unless the punch card machine slips a cog.

And P. S., Mom and Dad: The army says you can visit the training camps

Winter Hard on Alaska Force

When You're Shivering Think of U. S. Soldiers

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — When you are shivering in your boots at the first cold snap of winter, give a thought to the "Polar Bear" squadron and the boys of the army air corps who will most any time to see for yourself how all this is working out. But if there is something special about your son the arm ought to know, please take it up with the draft board before he gets in. I'll be ever so much easier to straighten out.

be flying planes during the frigid months at Uncle Sam's first Arctic experimental air field at Fairbanks, Alaska.

Maj. Dale Gaffney, commander at Ladd field, just out of Fairbanks, was in town recently to report to air corps headquarters, and already is winging his way back to his post in the flicker of the northern lights.

What the Major had to report: Ladd field will start the winter with 14 officers and 200 men (to be increased to 30 officers and 300 men by spring) and with five planes (also to be increased in number). Although adequate accommodations are up for the men, there wasn't time to build hangers, and the planes will go through the winter lashed to the snow when not in use.

Since temperatures of 60 degrees below zero are not uncommon at Fairbanks, this business of tethering planes in the open presented the Major and his men with one of their first problems. They think they have that solved. Over the motors of the planes will be placed great padded canvas hoods and under these will be heaters which will keep the planes ready for instant use even in severe weather. Else for Bonkers

Although skis or runners for small planes have been in use for years, Ladd field for the first time will try out ski landing gear on the great four-motored B-17 bombers, of which the post has two.

Major Gaffney, a husky fellow with a big grin, has flown more than 8,000 hours in his 24 years in aviation. He has lost no time in putting his command to work. Already flights have been made to Point Barrow, that polar-most tip of Alaska for inside the Arctic circle. And when the Capt. Richard Freeman, as flight order came through to ferry the bombers up from McChord field, Wash., commander, did it in eight hours, the first non-stop flight ever to have been made from McChord over the

The Major, however, insists there is nothing romantic about the Polar Bear squadron's assignment this winter.

"It's just hard work," he says. "And there's nothing romantic about hard work at 40 degrees below."

The experiments will include assembling all data possible on the effects of cold on motors, carburetors and wing surfaces (temperatures at Ladd field average under zero 116 days out of the year) and also reactions of the men to prolonged assignment at posts in the land of the midnight sun.

The "Polar Bear squadron" gets its name from the insignia on the planes, a polar bear standing up-right on an iceberg with an air bomb in its upraised paw. The orthern lights provide the background.

To Have Eskimo Clothes
An interesting phase of the army's winter activities in Alaska is that Brig.-Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, in charge of all armed forces in the territory, has set the Eskimos to making Arctic "uniforms" for the entire force. After an investigation of the clothing situation, General Buckner concluded that hood "parkas" and fur-lined "mukluks" (mocassins) would be the best protection for men against the extremes of cold prevalent in the Alaskan interior.

These garments are made only by the Eskimos, from the skins of Arctic fur-bearing animals and the General has issued orders that have set the Eskimo tailors working overtime.

The army air corps reports also that work is going forward for a second experimental air field in Alaska — Elmendorf field, near Anchorage. With war raging across both oceans, the army and navy are giving more and more thought to the strategic value of Alaska in the nation's defense plans.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY DU PONT
BEFORE YOU BUY ANTI-FREEZE

The Du Pont Company presents its newest chemical achievement—"Zerex"—a non-evaporating ethylene glycol anti-freeze at $2.65 a gallon. "Zerex" is a companion product to "Zerone," largest-selling $1.00 anti-freeze. Products of Du Pont chemical skill, "Zerone" and "Zerex" have NO superiors in their respective fields.

Du Pont "ZERONE" . . . .
in most demand!

Introduced to the motoring public only seven years ago, more "Zerone" anti-freeze is purchased today than any other brand. The reason is that "Zerone" is efficient and economical. It is so effective it can actually keep water from freezing even at 21.5° below zero! Surprisingly little is needed. A car with a 15-quart radiator capacity (the average size) can often get all-winter protection for as little as $1.50 to $2.00. A single gallon of "Zerone" will protect a 15-quart radiator to zero. "Zerone" is stable. Replacements under average conditions are small. All you need is an occasional check-up. A solution of "Zerone" and water passes off engine heat better than water alone. That means improved engine performance. "Zerone" contains a rust inhibitor that keeps clean cooling systems free of rust and corrosion, thus insuring proper circulation.

For an efficient low-price anti-freeze, buy "Zerone." Only $1.00 a gallon, 25c a quart. Don't let cold weather catch you unprepared. Protect your car today!

the new non-evaporating anti-freeze

Out of the same laboratories that developed that sensational new material, nylon, comes another chemical triumph—"Zerex"—a new and exclusive Du Pont formula.

Special ingredients make "Zerex" different from all other premium anti-freeze brands. It protects metals in the cooling system against rust and corrosion. It is an anti-acid that prevents formation of chemicals that attack aluminum cylinder heads, rubber hose and pump packings. No clogging of small radiator passages and tubes—improved cooling and engine efficiency—more heat from the car heater.

"Zerex" is more than just an anti-freeze. It's a winter radiator conditioner. Won't boil out. One filling does the job all winter long. If you are proud of your car—careful to use only the finest products in it—want freedom from worry and fuss over anti-freeze—can afford the best—then you'll want "Zerex." $2.65 a gallon, 70c in quarts. Get yours today from your local dealer and be safe and satisfied.

Notice to Be Given Draftee

Statement by Hempstead County Draft Board

The following statement was issued Thursday by H. B. Barr, chairman of the local Selective Service board:

The Selective Service Regulations provide:

Noting a Questionnaire (Form 40) by the Local Board to the registrant is notice that the process of classification and selection, with regard to that registrant has begun. Each day this Local Board will post at its office a notice of the order numbers of the registrants to whom Questionnaires have been mailed that day.

This Local Board keeps in its office a Classification Record (Form 100). On this Classification Record will be entered the date each notice is taken by this Board or the Board of Appeal concerning each registrant. The entry of this date in the Classification Record is notice of the action taken. Other notice will be mailed to each registrant at his address last known by the Local Board, and to any other person who files a claim for him.

Either the mailing of a notice or the entry in the Classification Record of the date the notice was mailed shall constitute notice to the registrant and all persons concerned. This is true whether or not the mailed notice is actually received by the person to whom it is addressed.

Any person required by law to register, or any registrant, who fails to perform a duty required by the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, within the time provided by the law (generally 5 days), has violated the law. A person violating the law is subject to trial in the United States District Court, which may impose a fine or imprisonment, or both.

The date when action was taken by the Local Board will be written in the Classification Record in each of the following instances:

Whenever a duty is to be performed by a registrant.

Whenever a period of time begins to run within which a registrant is to perform a duty.

Whenever a period of time begins to run within which a registrant may claim a privilege.

All registrants and other persons concerned should examine from time to time the notices posted by the Local Board and the Classification Record.

The Classification Record is open to inspection by the public during the Board's business hours.

It may be a very mild inflation or it may be a very robust inflation depending on the amount the government borrows.

Democracy Can't Control All Prices

Mr. Morgenthau thinks the government can create all this purchasing power and still prevent inflation by controlling prices. Mr. Morgenthau has another "think" coming. When you pump water into a dam the water rises and everything floating on the surface goes up with the water level. You cannot prevent these things from rising save by controls which hold each floating thing down under the water.

It is so with inflation. Pump purchasing power into the hands of the people and they will use it. And when they do prices will go up. The government may try to stop this. But there are too many prices to be controlled. A few prices get from under control and they have an effect on all other prices.

A ruthless, dictatorial government can hold prices down after a fashion, but not completely. But a democratic government cannot do it. It can accomplish something when we are at war. But when we are not at war people will not submit to the controls. The job is just too complicated and big.

A large element in Wall Street, there fore, is betting on this country getting deeper into the European war—without an actual declaration. It is betting that billions will flow out with speed that prices will rise and a marked though not runaway inflation will result.

74 Billion Debt in Sight?

Conservative groups oppose the grant of power for another 20 billion in debt limit. It is unnecessary they say.

If we use it we will have the present 44-billion-debt, plus five billions in guaranteed obligations of government corporations, plus the unused five billion plus the new twenty billion—total 74 billions and an annual interest bill when it is funded after the war of two billion dollars, a staggering burden.

Hence thoughtful bankers insist an extension of another five billion is all congress should make now and that not until the whole subject is carefully examined by experienced financiers.

Since all choose France the communique declared that residents were being transferred the unoccupied zone of France at the rate of seven trains daily.

Text of the letter follows:

It is possible that there will be an increased demand for electricians, linemen, and wiremen for work at Camp Robinson. Persons interested in such employment should make contact with their local employment offices, and get their applications on file at once.

When openings are available in excess of the local supply of workers, employment offices in various sections of the state will make referrals from their files of qualified applicants, and everyone should be cautioned not to come to Little Rock for a job at Camp Robinson unless notified to report by his home employment office. Making such a trip will invariably lead to disappointment.

C. O. Thomas Invited to Municipal Meet

City water superintendent C. O. Thomas has been invited to participate in a discussion of municipal water and sewage problems at a district meeting of the Arkansas Water and Sewage Conference to be held at Nashville at 9:30 a. m. on Thursday, November 21.

At this meeting, the discussions will center around the subject of revenue and water losses resulting from leaks. Water superintendents from the cities of Mt. Ida, Norman, Glenwood, Amity, Dierks, Murfreesboro, Nashville, Mineral Springs, DeQueen, Foreman, Ashdown, Texarkana, Hope, Prescott, Gurdon, Arkadelphia, Lewisville, Stamps, Waldo, Magnolia are also expected to attend.

This district school is now in its second year, a similar conference having been held in this section of the state in 1939. The conference is sponsored jointly by the Arkansas Municipal League, University of Arkansas College of Engineering and General Extension Service, State Department of Trade and Industrial Education, the State Board of Health, and the Arkansas Fire Prevention Bureau.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION IN HOPE SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1-A OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY, ARKANSAS

Notice is hereby given that the County Court of Hempstead County, Arkansas, has called a special election to be held in the Hope School District No. 1-A of Hempstead County, Arkansas, for the purpose of having the qualified electors of the said School District vote on the question of a six mills building fund tax, to be collected annually on the assessed valuation of the taxable property in the district, beginning with the taxes collected in 1941, to repay the principal and interest of a proposed refunding bond issue of $229,500 which will run for twenty-seven years and one month. The purpose of this refunding issue is to reduce the interest rate on the present outstanding bonds of the district and does not increase the district debt. The surplus in the building fund in any year, after making provision for six months' requirements on interest, must be used to buy bonds on tender or to call bonds in numerical order at par and accrued interest on January 1 of each year.

Said election will be held in said District on the 30th day of November, 1940, between the hours of 2:00 p. m. and 6:30 p. m., and otherwise in the same manner as provided by law for holding special school elections, at the following polling places, to-wit:

In the City Hall in the City of Hope. Witness my hand this 7th day of November, 1940.
